Just the season for hiking, without the black flies

By RICHARD GROVER

Lots of folks hike Caribou Mountain in summer, but not many make that trip in winter or early spring. While some may shiver at the thought, in some ways the hike is more scenic and enjoyable with the leaves gone and the terrain covered in a deep blanket of snow.

Last Wednesday, March 30, dawned cool and sunny, with the air so clear that everything sparkled and filled me with spring fever. It was a perfect day to climb a mountain on snowshoes, while the crust on the snow was just hard enough to hold me up. I knew I had to leave early, before the March sun got high enough to soften the crust too much for good travel.

I put an extra sweatshirt, some water and a light snack in a daypack, grabbed the digital camera and snowshoes and called my dog, Snuffy. We were at the trailhead at Pooh Corner Farm at 8 a.m.

We walked the last few hundreds need to watch closely not to miss the few arrows pointing the way to the correct road. The woods roads gradually get narrower and the trail steeper as you get closer to the mountain. The below. These obstacles were easily bypassed, but they confirmed the depth of the snow.

The higher up the mountain, the steeper the trail gets, until about a half mile from the top. At that point, the aluminum teeth on the snowshoes become essential, due to the deep drifts and the tendency to slide backward on the steep slopes.

All went well, except for two or three times when Snuffy stepped on the trailing edge of my snowshoes. Every time that 70-pound dog did that, I plunged headfirst into the snow!

The trail leveled out some as we approached the top, with a few glimpses of a spectacular horizon of blue-tinged moundred yards to the end of the plowed road due to the frozen ruts in the sand, indicating it would probably be muddy when the sun melted the ice. The trail was covered probably two to three feet in snow and was discernable only because some other snowshoe hikers had used the trail in the previous week or two.

For a mile or more the trail follows old woods roads, and deep snow actually makes hiking easier because it covers up a lot of the obstacles, like roots, rocks, logs and small dips; that is, as long as the crust keeps you from sinking in.

As the woods roads run out, the trail crosses and re-crosses several small streams where the recent warm weather had melted holes in the snow, exposing the rocks and water

High costs may stall completion of Rt. 2 reconstruction work

By ALISON ALOISIO

Faced with a 5.7-mile project that would eat up a quarter of the state's budget for rural highway reconstruction, the Maine Department of Transportation is rethinking its plan to rebuild a section of Route 2 west of Bethel.

Last year, MDOT started rebuilding two other stretches of Route 2 west of Bethel, and that work will continue this season.

But the 5.7-mile piece between them poses unique engineering problems. MDOT Commissioner David Cole described them in a March 18 letter to state Rep. Arlan Jodrey (R-Bethel).

The road section, Cole said, "is some of the most challenging rural highway needing improvements in Maine. It is perched on a steep valley wall between Peabody and Pickett mountains and the Androscoggin River. It shares this perch with the St. Lawrence & Atlantic Railroad.

"These topographic features, along with environmental constraints, contribute to the extraordinary engineering challenges and cost of improving this segment of highway."

The stretch includes several sharp curves with adjacent ledge rising above the road-way.

"Preliminary construction estimates are on the order of $3 to $4 million per mile, resulting in a total cost approaching $20 million," wrote Cole. "To put this in perspective, Maine DOT's entire statewide, rural highway reconstruction budget for the FY04-05 biennium

Selectmen sweeten terms of airport hangar lease

But a deal with local pilots' group is still not assured

By MICHAEL DANIELS

After a year and a half in committee, and an additional hour and a half discussion Monday evening, the town of Bethel has offered lease terms to a group of local pilots who hope to build hangars at the Bethel Regional Airport.

The selectmen, who have final authority in such matters, approved the lease terms at their regular meeting Monday.

To take effect, the lease arrangement must now be signed by the pilots' group, Bethel Hangar Construction, Inc.

Asked by Board Chairman Dutch Dresser, if the offer would be accepted, John Mason, who spoke for the group Monday, said: "I can't answer that until we've met and looked at numbers."

But, he added later, "I think we're all real serious about building hangars out there. If we weren't we wouldn't have put up with what we have for the past year.

Improved terms

In at least two significant areas, the lease terms approved by the selectmen are more favorable to the pilots' group than those recommended by the Bethel Airport Authority.

The Airport Authority recommended a base yearly rent of 35 cents per square foot. The selectmen reduced that to 25 cents.

The Airport Authority also recommended the initial lease period be 20 years, followed by four additional five-year periods. After the 40 years, the hangar would become the property of the town.

At Mason's urging, however,

Woodstock backs $400K grant for conference center and restaurant

By ALISON ALOISIO

A dozen Woodstock voters Tuesday authorized the town to accept a $400,000 grant to help Tim and Frances Buck expand their Mollycoddett Motel business.

The Bucks, who have owned the motel for about two years, plan to build an $800,000 addition that will serve as a restaurant/conference center.

The Community Development Block Grant Program funds such projects to help low- and moderate-income people find employment.

The Bucks are in the process of applying for the grant through the state's Department of Economic and Community Development. If they receive it, they must employ at least 20 people when they get the expanded business operating.

If they don't reach that employment requirement, said

SNAP!—During Sunday's rainstorm, waters of the Androscoggin River overflowed the coffer dam at the construction site of Bethel's new recreation bridge. The rising water also reached a yellow safety rope that Reed & Reed had strung across the river to mark the location of overhead power lines. The water caught the rope several times, stretching it, and then this chunk of ice cut it in two. The rope can be seen here snapping back toward the near river bank, leaving a "vapor trail" behind. At the same time, orange marking tape that had been tied to the rope disintegrated. By Monday, the water level had dropped by four feet and the crew was back at work on the project. No damage was done.

Weekend storm brings some flooding, plenty of erosion

CITIZEN STAFF

This time around the problem wasn't the snowpack on the ground as much as it was the frost still firmly entrenched underground (especially under roads, where it is driven deep by the weight of traffic).

Last weekend's early spring storm dumped 3.5 inches of snow in the Bethel area, according to the National Weather Service in Gray.

And with the ground still locked up, the rain and accompanying snowmelt had no place to go but along the surface and shallow, already thawed, subsurface.

Unlike in some earlier storms, flooding, while widespread, was generally minor.

But erosion was rampant.

Smaller roads, especially dirt roads, were hard hit, as the coursing waters scored deep gullies and washed away yards of roadway.

Paved roads were undermined and in some cases completely collapsed.

On the Old County Road in Greenwood, a frost-buckled culvert shifted, giving the waters the opening they needed.

The end result was a 7-foot-wide, 7-foot-deep, 40-foot-long canyon across the roadway, according to road foreman Alan Seames.

It took 64 yards of material to fill the road back in, Seames said. He noted that nearby roadway still has 4 feet of frost beneath it.

In Woodstock 1,000 feet of the Redding Road was washed away. In Andover the East B Hill was so badly eroded it had to be closed.

With scores of other roads also in need of repair, town officials are still tallying the financial impact of the storm.

In Greenwood, Town Manager Kim Sparks put the initial estimate at $30,000. Woodstock Town Manager Vern Maxfield projected a similar figure.

The damage in Bethel was less costly — approximately $10,000, according to road foreman Scott Sumner.

The town was forced to close four dirt roads because of erosion, Sumner said, and lost several stretches of shoulder along paved roads.

Flooded roads

In addition to the erosion problems, the storm's high waters also forced the closure of several area roads on Sunday, and in some cases, into Monday.

THANKS, CHIP TRUCK RESCUER

To the Editor:

We all here at the Bethel Irving would like to thank the person who helped our Emma out in her time of need.

On April 4 Emma felt the need to come to work in spite of the flood. She was swept away by the flood and finding herself screaming for her life. She can't swim, so that made her fear for her life even more. She found herself hollering for help while people kept on driving. Until, finally, a man in a chip truck stopped and waded through the water to save her.

Emma is the most kindhearted person you will ever meet, on top of being one of the best workers we have ever had. She is dedicated to serving all of her customers their favorite Subway sandwich. She is 74 years old and will run circles around everyone. We would not know what to do without her.

Come see Emma and say "Hi" at the Bethel Irving on Route 2.

NEED WELL-DRAFTED EXPLOSIVES

To the Editor:

The April Fool's Day spoof in last Thursday's paper was hilarious as well as sobering. In the same spirit, I imagine that a few well-placed, high-explosive charges might be considered to slow down the tunnel system.

Realistically, the explosives would need to take the form of a well-drafted ordinance designed to prevent ridge-line building and preserve scenic value — particularly the scenic value of those areas flagged as "views" in our comprehensive plans.

PREPARE FOR SUMMER SOLTICE

To the Editor:

With spring (mud season) only just now upon us, it will seem premature to discuss something happening on June 19, but, with only 74 more days to complete your artistic creation for the Sculpture Celebration, I thought I'd give you some encouragement to participate this year. There is a $10 fee to enter, but apart from that, the rest of the day's festivities are free to the public.

This year the Festival falls on Father's Day, so it occurs to me that we will be celebrating Mother Earth on Father's Day — a kind of yin/yang of a thought and may influence some ideas for the sculptures.

This fourth annual Solstice Celebration and Midsummer Festival will host live music, crafts for young and old alike, dancing, drumming, kite flying, a Midsummer Pole and much more. Put this date on your calendars please and join us. The Sculpture Celebration will be at "The Meadow," 1/2 mile west of town on Route 2, instead of on the common this year, along with the rest of the festival.

If you have any questions or would like to enter a sculpture, or you would like to offer your help (we need your help), you may call either Sally Taylor 824-3170 or Conni St. Pierre 824-3246 or visit the website: www.midsummerfestival.org.

STOP IN SAY 'HI'

To the Editor:

While working at the Good Food Store, I have made many friends whom I am going to miss seeing on a regular basis. Over the years, folks have become more than just customers to me. I have enjoyed getting to know them and their families. I have laughed, joked, and even grieved with them. I am thankful to have worked for such kind people as Heather and Dave Nivus. I am thankful for serving customers as good as the folks of Bethel.

In May I will be opening a bakery in South Paris. My business partner, Sarah Colby, and I are really excited to be able to offer homemade breads, breakfast items, and other traditional bakery items. I am looking forward to my new adventure. I want to invite all my friends to stop in and say "hi" when they are in the neighborhood.

CAN TELSTAR SUPPORT BOTH SOCCER AND FOOTBALL?

To the Editor:

As a member of the Telstar Football Fundraising Committee and a new member to the Bethel Community, I find myself faced with a daunting question. Can the SAD44 communities support both soccer and football? My answer to that question would be a resounding "yes."

I see where both sports fill a need for the athletes in the SAD44 area. Currently, there is a huge hole for those boys who do not fit into the soccer, basketball or track molds, leaving those athletes with limited opportunities to express themselves athletically.

Bringing football back to SAD44 would allow the boys who want to play an opportunity to learn teamwork and sportsmanship.

I have been told that if football returns to Telstar, that soccer will die. I cannot believe that will happen.

If anything, it will strengthen the sporting spirit of the community as a whole and give the boys in our area a chance to broaden their athletic horizons and help them learn to become team players and men of character.

Football has a way of bringing a community together and hopefully that will spill over to the many other sports that the great athletes at Telstar are involved in.

The Telstar Football Fundraising Committee is working with community members and business owners to bring the dream of high school football back to SAD44 for the 2005 fall season. There are currently many fundraising efforts in progress to raise the $45,000 in cash and $25,000 in pledges that are needed to help make this dream a reality. Just to clarify: by achieving the financial requirements set forth by the SAD44 School Board by June 30, 2005, football will return for the fall 2005 season.

Portions of the monies raised will be used as continued support for the first three years of the football program. After that time, SAD44 will take over the expenses associated with this program.

A fundraising dance with live music provided by "The Suspects" will be held at the Locke Mills Legion Hall this Saturday, May 7 from 8 p.m. to midnight to help raise money for this effort. Complete details can be found in the Community Calendar of The Citizen or by contacting Tim O'Conner at 824-0360.

You may also see some of our local athletes collecting money for football outside local businesses on the weekends.

Fundraising is now in full swing and your support is greatly appreciated.

I look forward to spending those crisp, fall days at the football field, watching and cheering for The Rebels, listening to The Rebel Marching Band play and visiting with the other members of our community.

That will indeed be a great day.

was $77.2 million."

Jodrey said last week he "had a feeling" MDOT was thinking of dropping the project, so he asked for a letter clarifying its status.

Cole said his letter "reinforces MaineDOT's desire to making the remaining improvements to this section of highway." The plan to rebuild the stretch was presented at a public hearing in Bethel in July of 2002. The $20 million estimated cost was noted then, said engineer Heath Cowan of the Urban & Arterial Highway Division.

Review and refinement of the engineering on the project is currently ongoing.

Cowan said that although he is still hoping to get the entire 5.7-mile segment done in the 2006-2007 biennium, the odds "are probably pretty slim at this point."

Among other options under consideration, he said, is one that would break the work into three smaller projects, "less than a couple of miles each."

"We've been asking, 'Can we do safety improvements, and address the worst curves, instead of just doing a mile of roading,'" he said. "We're looking at all alternatives."

Cole said in his letter that U.S. Congressman Mike Michaud has included a $2.5 million authorization toward the work in the House of Representatives version of the Federal Transportation Bill, as part of the Borders and Corridors Program.

Cole said he hoped approval would take place in the next six months.

The MDOT engineering review is expected to be completed within the next year, according to Cole. If there are substantial changes in the design, he said, MDOT would schedule another public meeting.

If funds are not approved for the project in the 2006-2007 budget cycle, it could come up for consideration again in the 2008-2009 cycle, Cowan said.

Lease

the selectmen agreed instead that at the end of the 40-year period, the town would not automatically take possession of the hangar at no cost, but would have the option of purchasing it for fair market value.

If the town opted not to make the purchase at that point, five additional five-year periods would commence, at the conclusion of which (65 years from the present) the building would then become the property of the town.

The selectmen also agreed to look into the requirement the pilots' group maintain a $3 million insurance liability policy.

Earlier in negotiations, a $1 million policy had been discussed, but the figure was raised near the end of the process, and no one present Monday appeared to know why.

If there is no compelling reason for the higher figure, the selectmen agreed, the $1 million figure would be acceptable.

Burden or asset
The selectmen Monday indicated reluctance to alter the terms recommended by the Airport Authority.

"I just really hate gutting all this work by the Airport Authority, I really do," said Reggie Brown. "I know it's the right thing to do, but I hate to do it."

In the end, however, three selectmen — Dresser, Brown and Don Bennett — concluded that the new terms were needed if the pilots' group was going to be able to go ahead with the project.

And, they argued, it was in the town's long-term interest to encourage growth and development at the airport, even if doing so meant collecting less rent up front.

The fourth selectman present Monday, Stan Howe, held out, but unsuccessfully, for a somewhat higher rent, town ownership of the hangar at an earlier date, and for sending the new lease terms back to the Airport Authority for further discussion.

Howe, who described himself as a strong supporter of the airport since the first key town vote on it in 1982, said he worried that if the lease terms were not more favorable to the town, the airport risked becoming "a burden to taxpayers of Bethel."

"I'm very strong on that, and I think we should make sure it doesn't become a burden. It has to be self-supporting as far as I can see."

Dresser saw the matter differently.

"I need to disagree publicly with that," he said following Howe's comment.

"The airport is transportation infrastructure, as are the highways, as are the bridges; and ultimately the airport will become something of a burden to the taxpayers unless we can find ways to make it a revenue generator."

Bennett seconded that view. "Just owning an airport out there isn't going to help the people of Bethel. It's the use that helps," he said. "The people of Bethel have to realize that the mills I used to supply logs to are dwindling to nothing, the whole economy is just not the same kind of economy."

'Flawed' process
There appeared to be general agreement that the process leading to the lease offer had been unduly long and contentious.

"I have found this process to be deeply flawed," said Dresser. "This has spent way, way, way too much time in committee. There have been all kinds of antics and shenanigans in committee. So to get it out of committee at all was a wonderment to me."

Ex-Moontide official pleads not guilty

PARIS — Matthew J. Plante, the former president of the Moontide Water Festival, pled not guilty last week in Oxford County Superior Court to a charge he stole more than $5,000 from the organization. He had been indicted in February on a felony charge of theft. MWF raises approximately $40,000 annually for Rumford's Fourth of July celebration. Plante resigned his position in October, and a subsequent internal investigation found the organization owed creditors between $13,000 and $15,000. Plante's case is expected to go to trial by late summer.

Ski trail named for 'The Streak'

CARRABASSETT VALLEY — A skier who never missed a day on the slopes for more than two decades is being honored with a ski trail bearing his name. Sugarloaf USA is renaming a portion of the Narrow Gauge Trail as "Schipper's Streak" in recognition of Paul Schipper's dogged pursuit of skiing perfection in which he hit the slopes for 3,903 consecutive days before being sidelined by the flu. The Streak, as it was known around Sugarloaf, has been submitted to "Guinness World Records" as the longest streak of its kind. "In our research, we haven't found anything that even comes close to the magnitude of Paul's streak," Bill Swain, Sugarloaf's spokesman, said Monday in a statement. "If Paul's streak isn't a record, then I don't know what is." The renaming of the trail will take place in conjunction with a celebration on April 17 honoring Schipper's accomplishment. Schipper, 81, said he was happy to be honored and wondered whether anyone would be inspired to pick up where he left off. "Maybe somebody will pick up the streak," Schipper wondered aloud. Then he thought better of it and joked, "Nobody's that crazy."

Kennebec Kayaker drowns

GARDINER — A kayaker who attempted to maneuver his way down a rolling stream leading to the flooded Kennebec River died Monday after he became snagged in trees and efforts to rescue him failed. James McCann, 48, of Gardiner, became the first victim of this spring's floods while he was kayaking down the Cobbosseecontee Stream. Police Officer Julian Harwood said McCann was approaching the Kennebec in downtown Gardiner when he was seen clinging to trees along the fast-moving stream. Another kayaker tried to rescue McCann, and city rescue teams who soon showed up tried to get a rescue line to him but also failed, Harwood said. McCann went into the water, and after he resurfaced rescue personnel tried to revive him, Harwood said. The accident happened as Maine's major rivers crested above flood stage, sending water into basements and shutting down roads that became flooded and damaged by the water.

Conservation school gets grant

WOODSTOCK — The Maine Conservation School at Bryant Pond has received grant money from the Davis Conservation Foundation in part to run the second season of their "Take Action for Wildlife" neighborhood conservation project contest for young people. The contest, originally funded in 2003 by a Maine Outdoor Heritage Fund grant, has MCS campers taking action for wildlife at home. The young people take the skills and concepts learned at the school and apply them to their local neighborhoods, then submit a report on their project. The projects are judged by MCS staff and prizewinners receive outdoor gear donated by L.L. Bean's and other prizes. In 2003, winners were invited to attend an awards ceremony, hosted by Gov. Baldacci in the Hall of Flags in the State House, and each winner was greeted by her or his state representative and senator. For almost 50 years, the Maine Conservation School's camp and school programs have introduced children and adults to a blend of outdoor fun, environmental education, and practical outdoor skills. Moose Lottery at Mountain Valley RUMFORD — Maine's annual Moose Lottery will be held on Thursday, June 16, at 6 p.m. at Mountain Valley High School, 799 Hancock Street, Rumford. Since 1999, the Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife has rotated the lottery throughout the state. Previously, it was held only in Augusta. This is the first time in western Maine. Previous lotteries were held in Millinocket, Wiscasset, Old Town, Bucksport, Scarborough and Presque Isle. This year, 2,895 names will be drawn in the random chance lottery. The season dates are Sept. 26 through Oct. 1 in the far northern and eastern areas of the state (Wildlife Management districts 1 through 6, 11, and 19), and Oct. 10 through 15 in the northern two thirds of the state (Wildlife Management districts 1 through 14, 18, 19, 28 and 29). The number of permits issued will be 1,120 for the September season, and 1,775 permits in October. "We have tried to move the drawing to all parts of the State so that people can have the opportunity to be part of it firsthand," said Dan Martin, DIF&W. "Nothing pleases us more than to have members in the audience react to being selected," he said.

Development Project Manager Terry Ann Stevens, the town would technically be liable to repay the money.

But as part of the arrangement, the Bucks have signed an agreement that they would assume responsibility for any repayment.

If they get the grant, they hope to begin work on the project this construction season. As the work progresses, grant funds would be paid out to project contractors through the Woodstock Town Office.

Stevens said her agency wants more than half the jobs generated to be full-time.

And, she said, DECD would look for 51 percent of the people hired to come from low-to-moderate income brackets, as determined by the state.

Her research has shown the project will not take away business from others in the area — a criteria for grant approval.

The Bucks would have up to three years after the addition is completed to reach the employment quota, Stevens said.

"I'm confident in working with them," she said. "They've been very careful in projecting what they need to do."

Tim Buck said both he and his wife have experience working in restaurants, and would plan to hire someone to manage the business for them.

He said he expects to reach the employment quota within months of when the center starts operating.

In answer to a question from Marcel Polak about their marketing plans, Frances Buck said they have been working at marketing the motel through a website and through membership in the Bethel and Oxford Hills chambers of commerce.

She said they also plan to aim marketing at specific groups, such as senior citizens, businesspeople and tourists interested in the area's gem and mineral resources.

Since purchasing the motel, said Tim Buck, they have lowered its vacancy rate from 78 percent to 58 percent.

He also said they are working on a business plan. "If it goes the same way as the motel, I'm not worried," he said.

Asked if the town would be protected under the agreement between the Bucks and the town in the event the business is sold before the employment requirement is met, Buck replied, "The business won't be sold."

Town Manager Vern Maxfield said the agreement has not yet been reviewed by an attorney on behalf of the town, but it would be.

The secret ballot vote on the issue was 12 in favor, with one abstention.

This year there are real penalties for ATV operators who are caught violating mud season trail postings

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Landowners are closing their trails to all-terrain vehicle operators to minimize trail damage as mud season arrives across much of Maine.

Mud season is eagerly awaited by many ATV riders who like nothing more than to get splattered in mud. But mud season, the time of year when melting snows and spring rains turn much of Maine into a soupy quagmire, also is when four-wheel ATVs can do the most damage to saturated soils.

After years of complaints from property owners who say ATVs are destroying their lands, state officials passed new ATV legislation last year to give landowners more power to protect their property.

The new law carries hefty fines and loss of state licenses and permits of ATV operators who ride on property that has been closed to the machines.

To restrict a trail temporarily, landowners need to post both ends of the trail on their property with red-and-white signs that can be acquired for free from the Bureau of Parks and Lands. The signs say the trail is closed because of saturated soils and have a space for an expected reopening date.

Members of ATV Maine, a statewide organization and advocate for ATV riders and clubs, and property owners are temporarily closing trails or soon will close trails.

"We need to get the word out that mud season is here," said Brian Bronson, recreational vehicle coordinator for the Bureau of Parks and Lands. "Most of the trails are in fact closed or are being closed. Most of the club trails will be posted closed, and all of our rail trails and other trails in the state are being posted."

Landowners always could post their land to limit ATV travel, but before the laws were passed, there were few consequences for violators, ATV Maine spokesman David Barter said.

"You're still going to have the people who refuse to adhere, but at least there is a law so if they're caught, they can be written up and made to pay a fine," he said. "It doesn't take three or four or five four-wheelers to roll through and upset the apple cart and destroy a trail — it only takes one."

Most trails will reopen by mid-May, state officials estimate.

"My own trailmaster just hates like hell to close the trail because he loves to go play in the mud," said Barter, who also is the president of a Bath ATV club. "But we have to do it to protect the trails." Bath club members have installed snow fencing in several areas to prevent travel on wet trails.

People caught operating an ATV on a closed trail or without landowner permission, abusing another person's property, operating recklessly or while under the influence of intoxicants, or trying to elude or failing to stop for law enforcement automatically lose their hunting, fishing, guide, taxidermy or other Inland Fisheries and Wildlife licenses and face a mandatory fine of at least $1,000.

The new ATV laws also require riders to ask permission before using a trail and to get written permission if a trail passes through cropland, pastures or an orchard.

The measures obligate ATV operators to get permission from every landowner on every trail they ride unless they are ATV-marked trails, said Paul Jacques, deputy commissioner of the Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife.

Storm

Locations included the intersection of the Flat and Meadow Brook Bridge roads in West Bethel; Route 232 in Rumford, south of East Bethel Road intersection; and the end of Rumford Avenue in Woodstock, at the Route 232 intersection.

In Albany, water covered the end of Vernon Street, near the Route 5 intersection, and Route 5 itself, just north of same intersection. Vehicles were able to get through by driving slowly.

This most recent storm was somewhat unusual in the areas it flooded. In Greenwood, Seames said the Greenwood Road was flooded in places he had never seen it under water before.

Some previously dry basements also filled.

Jeri Brooks, of Brooks Bros. in Bethel, said the number of flooded basements calls the store received was less than might be expected, but the affected basements included some she believed had never before flooded.

Others you might have expected to flood, she said, did not.

In Woodstock, the Fire Department pumped out four basements. Not an unusual number, Maxfield said, but three were basements he believed had not suffered such inundations in the past.

River crest uneventful

The Androscoggin River crested in Bethel around 6 p.m. and did not flood main roads near the village.

Logs and chunks of ice floated by, but did not appear to cause any blockages or other problems.

The Androscoggin overflowed the coffer dam at the site where the new recreation bridge is under construction, near Route 2. But there was no damage done, and work resumed on Monday after the water had receded.

Around mid-afternoon Davis Park became busy with traffic, as people stopped to watch the rising waters.

tains and that cloudless, deep-blue sky. As we broke out onto the ledges, the view was uninterrupted in all directions.

The only fly in the ointment was a brisk breeze, straight out of the north. I took a couple photos of Snuffy on the summit, with the Presidential Range in the background.

I shared my two apples and several peanut butter crackers with Snuffy, and we retraced our steps back to the truck. By this time, the top two inches of snow was soft and wet, but the snowshoes rarely penetrated below that.

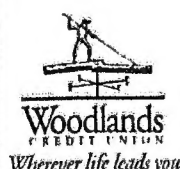

I took one last header into the deep snow while treading around the high snowbanks pushed up by the snowplows at the end of the road.

By the end of this six-mile-plus hike, Snuffy and I were both tired, but none the worse for wear.

Upton

by Eleanor LeComte
The weather in Florida has finally changed from cool and windy, to clear, warm, beautiful days with blue skies and fair weather clouds. We have heard that Upton is having a spell of spring rain and that disappointing April mess. There have been several areas of road damage after the heavy rain. Mother Nature is a severe taskmaster.

Earlier in the week we visited Merritt Island Wildlife Refuge again. It is a remarkable place with a whole new crop of birds ready to fly north. This time we witnessed many alligators basking in the sun. Some were 15 to 20 feet long. On our last visit no manatees were seen, but this time there were quite a few. About a dozen collected at the Crossover Canal. They were not candidates for a beauty contest. A few had scars on their backs from boat contact. There are strict laws in place to protect them.

The Canaveral National Seashore abuts the Refuge. It is a long, beautiful beach with very few people using this wonder. At one point there is a "Nude Beach." A black flag warns visitors as to its location. We didn't go in here in order to protect the public eye and the environment.

The birds at the Refuge were wonderful. Several sizes of egrets, curlews, diving ducks, bald eagles, vultures, and many others were seen. The most remarkable was the roseate spoonbill. It is a bright pink crane-like bird with a white neck and back and orange tail. It's bill has a broad spatula-like tip which is used to obtain food by sweeping the shallow waters for shrimp and small fish. A small flock in the estuary flew creating quite a pretty picture.

Larry and Sue Nelson have returned to Upton from their trip south, just in time for spring "gloop."

Liz and Walter Stanczyk have also come home to the less-than-desirable weather. Mud season and ice-out are two of April's gifts. There was a mass exodus south while they were gone. Dick Angevine and Paul

EAST BETHEL TRAILER BURNS

A trailer on the East Bethel Road was gutted last week in a fire that likely started around an electrical outlet. No one was home when the blaze broke out at around 9:30 a.m., said Bethel Fire Chief Jim Young. The trailer was being rented from Todd Kellogg by Tina Cropley and Scott Palmer and their two children. Cropley discovered the fire when she returned home, according to Officer Travis Fillmore of the Bethel Police Dept., who arrived on the scene before the Fire Department and made sure no one was in the trailer. Fire departments from Greenwood and Newry also responded, while the Woodstock FD stood by at the station, Young said. Bethel Rescue also responded. The renters did not have insurance, Young said.

Casey took over the reins (and the rains).

Evelyn Kenney sends me weekly reports on the birds in Upton. The blackbirds are back fighting the red squirrels for stale doughnuts and sunflower seeds. That's a sure sign that spring will really arrive within a month. (Maybel) I think those less-than-loved blackbirds should be "Bird of the Week." We welcome grackles, red-winged blackbirds, starlings and those miserable cowbirds. No matter what our feelings are, they are really harbingers of spring.

Gilead

by Lin Chapman
While I am writing my column the rain is coming down quite heavy.

There is some flooding on the North Road and Route 2. At this point, Route 2 is open to all traffic, but if the rain continues through the night, that could change. Bog Brook is usually one of the first places to have water over the road.

Steve McLain heard from his son, Capt. Stephen McLain. Stephen's tour in Iraq is up soon and he will be receiving word on his next assignment shortly.

Many years ago the Gilead Women's Club existed here in town. Children grew up and interest diminished. Now I understand that there may be a renewed interest in getting another group started. There are several young children in town now that would benefit from a group that could sponsor events like a Halloween Party, Easter Egg Hunt and other fun things to do. If anyone is interested, they should give Bethany Corriveau a call at 836-2032.

Selectmen's Meeting
According to Beverly Corriveau, administrative assistant, there will be a selectmen's meeting on April 13 at 7 p.m.

Planning Board
This is just another reminder that the Planning Board is meeting at the Town Hall on April 7 at 6 p.m. This is the first of a series of Public Hearings to obtain public input on several draft ordinances.

Gilead Historical Society
The newsletter is ready to go to the printer. Members will be receiving one in the mail as soon as we receive them. The GHS has 60 members at present. They are always looking for more people who are interested in joining. Give me a call at 836-2987 and ask for an application. We are, as always, looking for any information that anyone has to share about Gilead.

Some information may not seem like much on its own, but when compiled with other things that we have, it could fill in a missing piece to a puzzle we are trying to solve. All pictures can be copied and originals returned. Keep the GHS in mind for any Gilead-related photos and articles. The GHS hopes to some day acquire a building that can be used for meetings and storage of the articles that are beginning to be donated.

Any news? Call 836-2987 or e-mail chapmal@hotmail.com.

West Bethel

by Lorrie Hoeh
Mud season starts when the under-ground frost begins to thaw.

Conventional wisdom has it that a good rain will hasten the process and clear that frost and its gluey mud more quickly. If that's true, then mud season should be gone in a hurry this year. We measured 4.25 inches of rain over the weekend deluge. That ought to do the job.

Eighteen years ago, on April 1, 1987, Mike and I were returning from closing the sale on our previous dwelling and were turned back at Telstar High School on Route 26, because of the April Fool's Day flood.

We subsequently spent the night at the Mollycoddell Motel before we were able to get back to the Flat Road. It seemed like almost a repeat of that storm this past weekend as we drove around on Sunday afternoon, surveying the situation.

The Androscoggin had not yet crested, and at this writing I have no way of knowing how high the waters eventually rose. However, we did note that our little piece of the East Branch was higher on the road than we've seen it before. Meadow Brook Bridge Road was inundated, as was the "Swamp Road" section of the Flat. Smith Farm Road and surrounding fields looked like a giant lake, with the road under water to the west of the bridge. We were going to check out Newt's Landing, but once again encountered a pond of unknown depth covering the pavement.

All of this is very exciting, as long as it's not your basement that's full of water, or your house that's cut off from the world. I hope all our neighbors have come through with few or no adverse consequences.

In the "spring is here" department, we note that the goldfinches (by the hundreds) are changing to their bright yellow plumage; flocks of robins have been spotted on Grover Hill Road and elsewhere; and Mike saw a woodcock just down the road from us. He has also seen a pair of beavers at the bridge on Grover Hill, near where John Applin has seen others a couple of times. It's also a treat to hear the cacophony of birdsong while we're walking in the morning.

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published by special arrangement with the Advertising Department

As I get older, though seemingly no wiser, my life has come down to a case of "mind over bladder."

I'm serious about this. My days and a good portion of my nights revolve around going to the bathroom. In fact, you could say that the only night-life I have is getting up and going to the bathroom.

It didn't used to be this way. I am certainly not a person who has been obsessed with my bodily functions. I didn't plan trips by mapping out where the public restrooms are. I was never concerned about sneezing and leaking. But, the times, they are a changing.

I know as we age, the bladder muscles, just like the muscles everywhere else in my body, stretch out and are not as firm as they used to be. I know all that, but it doesn't make it any easier.

The fact remains that when nature calls, I'd better answer pretty darn quickly. I'm lucky to have a two-minute warning.

The exception to that rule is when I go to the doctor's office and they hand me a little cup. Then the muscles of my bladder seem to regain their youthful tightness and not a drop will they release.

But, other than the occasional visits to the doctor I have no problems with raising the water level wherever I go. Sometimes I feel like the queen of the porcelain throne.

Because I spend so much time in tiled kingdoms, believe me when I say, they are not all created equal. I have visited some facilities that were so nice, clean and pleasant that I actually wanted to move in.

I have gone into others that were so unpleasant that I thought Depends would be a better alternative if only I had some.

As for Porta-Potties, I use them only as a last resort in an absolute emergency. It's not just the fact that at any crowded event where they are used they become a bit aromatic quite quickly, it's also because I have this horrible fear that someone is going to tip the darn unit on its side when I'm in mid-business.

I've noticed that children shy away from the temporary conveniences too. Maybe they have the same fear that I have. That's not the case in any other facility however. Children seem to have an abnormal need to check out the bathrooms wherever they go.

There is definitely no equality in gender plumbing.

Perhaps it's the one thing in their lives that they feel equal to the adults or maybe it is just childish curiosity. Whatever it is, I can tell you that they are not very quick about it. Being on the other side of the door while a youngster is checking out the soap dispenser or the paper towel situation can be a painful experience. If the bathroom happens to have a hot air hand drier, forget it! Go somewhere else because those gadgets can keep a young mind occupied for a very long time.

I'm not crazy about the facilities at any major sporting event either. The lines for the ladies room are always a mile long. Everyone is trying to be casual about the long wait, but it's really hard to be casual when you're trying to hold your legs together or bouncing on the balls of your feet.

For older women, that wait can be pure agony. You pray you don't sneeze or get jostled. To add insult to injury you notice there is no line to the men's room. They walk in, do their thing and walk right back out. There is definitely no equality in gender plumbing.

I'm not sure what is worse, waiting in line or achieving the relief you seek only to discover there is no toilet paper. On more than one occasion I have had to resort to turning pockets inside out or emptying the contents of my purse hoping to find a Kleenex.

Discarded gum wrappers and old check stubs just don't do the trick. At times like that I find myself wondering if I can get a leg up high enough to position myself at the hot air hand drier.

The worst public bathroom situation I ever found myself in was not due to long lines or the lack of toilet paper; it was caused by an automatic flusher.

It was at an airport in the wee hours of the morning. I didn't know such toilet contraptions existed so therefore I didn't know they could malfunction. Let me just say that with heightened airport security being what it is, it is not a good idea to scream at 3:00 a.m. because the toilet flushed while you were still performing and you thought you were being sucked down into the sewer system.

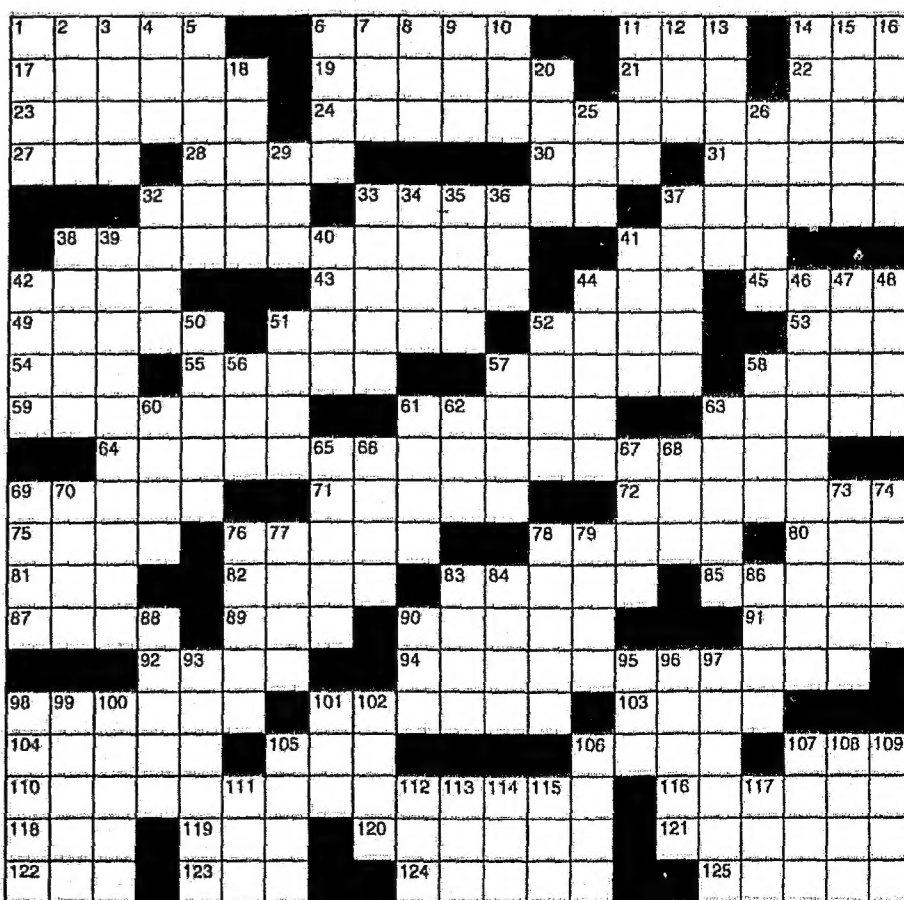

It was nice that I could provide some comic relief for airport security in the middle of the night, but it gave me little comfort under the circumstances.

Now I stay away from airport facilities, I carry a good supply of Kleenex, I avoid sporting events and for the rest of it, well, the way I see it, it really is a case of mind over bladder.

living at Ledgeview Living Center. Ruth's address is Ledgeview Living Center, Room 111, 14 Bethel Road, West Paris, ME 04289. She would love hearing from her friends.

Our granddaughter, Molly Siegel, and several classmates competed in Odyssey of the Mind at Bates College over the weekend. Their group disported themselves well, coming in fifth out of fourteen. They're all looking forward to participating again next year. Credit is due to their coaches, Martha Siegel and Kate Goldberg, for guiding the girls through the process.

The snow is disappearing fast, and the seedlings are thriving in the greenhouse. While the asparagus patch is several weeks from producing, I dream of those first tender spears smothered in butter. I also dream of hearing from you, so please call 836-3011 or e-mail dhoeh@megalink.net with news, tidbits, jokes, or what-have-you.

Mona put an angel food cake on top of our birdfeeder last weekend, and the birds haven't touched it yet. Why? You ask. It must be the flavor. She was making a low-cal, low-sugar dessert for Easter dinner and thought of a nice angel food cake with pineapple and cool whip filling.

First, Mona was going to buy a cake, but the Bethel Foodliner only had little cakes. Then she decided to make one, but she had to borrow an angel food cake pan from "Big Sister" because she had never made an angel food cake before. She got out the recipe and was surprised at how easy it was. Just add lots of egg whites and some almond flavoring and a couple other things. She found the almond flavoring, which had apparently been in the pantry since "Hector was a pup," but stuff like that doesn't spoil, does it?

She whipped up the cake, and it came out of the oven looking beautiful. It did smell a little odd, though, so she tasted a little morsel. It tasted very strongly like the perfume she wears. Yuck! Then she asked me to taste it. Yup. It tasted like her perfume, and too much of a good thing to be palatable. "It must be that almond flavoring that has been in the cupboard since before we were married, eight years ago." That almond stuff must have fermented something wicked.

We got four inches of water in that deluge last weekend. It took the ice out of all the local streams, which went down Pleasant River and jammed up in the alders downstream of John Applin's home, bringing the river over both roads near the corner by Meadow Brook Bridge. It also soaked the basements of several homes in the neighborhood, including ours. I'm hoping it also took most of the frost out of the ground under the secondary roads and front yards around here.

Andover

The Andover Elementary School is happy to announce that after months of fundraising they have been able to purchase new playground equipment. They are looking for volunteers to help with the setup and installation on April 22 and 23 (Friday and Saturday). Volunteers will need to bring their own shovel and rake. The group is also looking for the use of two wheelbarrows and a front loader to spread wood chips. For more information or to volunteer, please either contact the school at 392-4381 or Tracy Rainey 392-1113.

The three Andover Alumni Association officers and the banquet chairperson, Sharon Farrington, met at the home of Violet Swain on March 27 to make plans for the annual Banquet. President Dorothy Roberts and Treasurer Ronnie White conducted the meeting. It was voted to have this year's banquet at the Andover School gym on Saturday, May 28. A social gathering will be from 5 to 5:45 p.m. with dinner being served at 6. Sharon and her crew of underclassmen and relatives will serve a roast turkey dinner. The cost for dinner is $8.

Ronnie White and Ross Swain have brought up to date more alumni addresses. It was reported that 750 announcements were sent out last May, being very costly to the organization. It was voted that if the Alumni Association does not receive a response from the current invitations, with a $2 check for dues, the person will not receive an announcement in 2006. This year's invitations will be mailed, or delivered, the first week in May.

There are 15 seniors in the Andover-Telstar class this year.

Bruce Simmons, son of Lorena Simmons, formerly of California, has retired and moved back to Maine. He graduated from Telstar in 1969.

Jean and Lester White were married 69 years on March 28.

Tammy and John Presutti, of Newburgh, N.Y., and their babies, triplets Nicole, Kayla and Sydney, visited her parents, Bobby and Darlene Hall over Easter. Darlene will be traveling to New York next month for their Christening.

There will be an A.T.V. Safety course on April 30 at the Andover School. The time is 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. For more information, call 545-2715.

Don't forget to turn in those baseball and softball slips by Friday, April 8 (tomorrow). They can be turned in to the Andover School office or WELCOME THE CHILDREN--Bethel sculptor Tom White has created a life-size bronze sculpture scene of Christ, with five children running towards Him, entitled "Welcome the Children." The scene was commissioned by Matt and Glenna Bevin of Woodstock and Louisville, Ky., to celebrate the life of their daughter, Brittney Wish Bevin. Brittney loved children and was involved in Summer Youth Mission trips in orphanages both in India and Romania. She died in September, 2003 in an automobile accident. In this scene, she is carrying a child on her back and leading another by the hand to Christ. The family has set up a Foundation, "Brittney's Wish" (www.bwish.org), to fund short-term summer missions trips for teens. Proceeds from future sales of the scene will be donated by White to Brittney's Wish. The sculpture scene will be on display at Tom's Studio at A Prodigal Inn & Gallery, 162 Mayville Rd., Bethel, for the next month, and the public is welcome to stop by and see it. The scene will then be transported to Louisville, Ky. to be placed on Brittney's grave.

Happy birthday this week to Lacey Gammon, Kayla Mills, and Wade McPherson.

Hanover

by Clem Worcester

It is that time of year again. The Rumford Point Community Athletic Association has started planning for the 2005 baseball season. Sign-ups for Farm League, Little League and Babe Ruth will be Sunday, April 10, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Hanover Town Office. All children ages six to 15 from Rumford Point and Hanover are encouraged to sign up. Special note: This year six-year-olds may sign up for Farm League. Registration is $15 for one child or $20 for two or more children in the same family.

There will be another meeting of the Rumford Point Community Athletic Association on Sunday, April 17, at 6 p.m. at the Hanover Town Office to discuss the upcoming season, the field cleanup day and the annual bottle drive. Everyone from Hanover and Rumford Point are invited to attend.

Walter and Adel Schlie are at their newly built home on South Shore Road. Their new home has been worked on during the winter as has two other new houses also located on South Shore Road. Steve Richardson's house is built with more work to complete his plan, and the new cottage for Dan Whitting was finished earlier in the winter. Through the efforts of some of the South Shore Road property owners the road has remained passable most days all winter. Judy Ray from Austin, Texas, recently sent photos of some of the paintings that her father, Bob Lovejoy, had painted. She was hoping that some of the older local folks could identify the locations where the watercolors were painted. In the 1950s during warm summer days, Bob would be seen around the area doing his artwork. Both buildings shown in the pictures were in Hanover village along the Howard Pond Road.

Last week, the sign at the Hanover Town Office read, "Hi Sarah Mud." Everyone wanted to know who Sarah Mud was. Come to find out, Sarah's name is not "Mud," it is something else. "Mud" was intended to commemorate this time of year when everything dirt turns into mud and hopefully dries out real soon.

was born at Stephens Memorial Hospital. She joins her two siblings. What fun they will have growing up together.

On March 17, the Waterford-Stoneham Lions met at 6 p.m. at the Stoneham Rescue Barn with a potluck supper. There were 23 people there including three guests from the Massachusetts Lions Club from Waterboro, Marjorie and George Kiley and Earl Morrison (who has been their secretary for 31 years).

Marjorie spoke about her club, which has 77 members and they are very active with fundraising projects and helping on different programs in their community and abroad.

A short meeting was held after the "Irish night" supper, which was great. Pat Carson served as president in the absence of Paul Hersey, Jim Owen gave the blessing, and Bob Swett led members in the salute to the flag. Secretary and treasurer's reports were read and accepted. The Lion Tail Twister, Marcia, was kept quite busy during the evening. She finally found her "Lion," which was filled with "fines." Action is to be taken on the dental care for young children in the area who need it. Magnetic nametags have arrived and were handed out to the members. It was voted to make a donation to the Seeing Eye Guide Dog project. Meeting adjourned at 8:10 p.m.

April 14 is the date for the next Waterford-Stoneham Lions meeting and supper, which will be held at the Bear Mtn. Inn in Waterford at 6 p.m., with a South Beach diet in mind. Hope all members plan to be there.

The above items should have gone in last week but did not get there and now it is news time again, so here it goes.

Last week, my sister, Frances Grant, went into the Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway where she had a gall bladder operation. I was busy visiting with her and tending her cats at home, etc. She is coming along quite well and I am back on regular schedule.

Diane Johnson saw a big fat robin at her birdfeeder recently. Spring has sprung. What nice springy days now (in between the snow and rain days).

I hope you do not mind my bragging a little—

Nawal Traish, daughter of Sharon Nelson Berman and granddaughter of Albert and Eleanor Nelson of Stoneham, was the proud winner of her Middle School National History Day Individual Exhibit competition. She went on to represent the Belmont, Mass., Middle School in the District Competition in Winchester, Mass., and won first place again for her presentation of "Follow the Drinking Gourd — The Underground Railroad." She is now moving on to the state competition at Clark University in Worcester, Mass., on April 9.

Aisha Traish, daughter of Sharon Nelson Berman and granddaughter of Albert and Eleanor Nelson of Stoneham is a fourth-year medical student at Boston University School of Medicine. She will graduate with her M.D. on May 22, 2005. She is the president of Alpha Omega Alpha, Boston University Chapter of the world's only medical honor society and gave a speech on March 14 to welcome new inductees into the AOA.

There is so much bad news in the papers now. I like to write and read good news, don't you?

I visited Wilma Taylor in the Norway Rehab and Living Center recently for a few minutes. That is a real nice place to be and Wilma says all the staff are real good to her as they are to all the patients. They take good care of her, she says.

Loretta Andrews continues going to Portland for treatments and fittings. Her son, Everett, takes her as she is in a wheelchair these days.

The Daughters of Union Veterans, Hannah F. Richardson Tent 19 met at the home of Loretta Andrews on March 23 with six members present. Gail Butterfield opened the meeting at 7:30 p.m. The secretary and treasurer's reports were read and accepted. Joyce Gouin gave an appropriate reading of interest. Refreshments were served after the meeting. Eleanor Nelson brought the mystery prize and it was won by Lesley Dean. Next meeting is planned to be at the home of Eleanor Nelson on April 27 at 7 p.m.

Albany

by Dana & Sheila Dyke

Greetings and hello from Albany Township. We hope that everyone had a great Easter weekend holiday. We were all sick with the flu that weekend.

Our prayers and thoughts go out to our pastor, Eddie Gammon. We were sorry to hear that he had been unwell and we hope that he is on a quick mend. He performed the Sunrise Service on Easter morning, and John Holiday conducted the normal service at 9:30. Remember that services on Sundays begin at 9:30 a.m. Youth Group is still being held Friday afternoons, and if you are interested, please give Holle Corriveau a call. She'd love to hear from you.

Proofreading is always a good thing. When we mentioned the near-car accident, we did not mean that the road conditions were at fault. Reading the article in print, we realized that that was how it sounded. The roads have been great this past winter. The cause was a red, economy car spinning its wheels at the mouth of Fiske Road that came careening out of the road right alongside us and pushed us off the road. It was very nerve-racking, especially where we had the baby with us.

We hope that everyone didn't get flooded during this past weekend's mammoth rain storm. Was rather nice watching the snow melt away. We did watch a small brook rush across a neighbor's driveway

The snow has almost disappeared. No flowers here as yet. As I looked across the road to the shores of Andrew's Brook at Trap Corner I could see a lake. It did not reach the homes there. By Sunday evening the water was beginning to recede. So another spring flood turned out to be less than predicted. All of the wells should now be full and the farm lands well saturated for the farmers to plant.

The Rev. Joy Gasta will speak on "Come Sing a Song With Me: Acceptance of One Another and Encouragement to Spiritual Growth in Our Congregations." Jim Burke is organist. A coffee hour follows the service.

Beverly Stevens and Lee Dean were in Brunswick to visit Lee's sister, Louise Sergeant. And in Topsham they had a short visit with Argot Wright. On April 14, I will be the guest speaker at the Whitman

Memorial Library in Bryant Pond. I will talk about my trip to London, England, a year ago.

I went to visit my son, Dr. Joseph Lamb, who is a Professor of Art History. He taught the spring semester there, having his class of 25 students from Ohio University learning art looking at the real pictures instead of studying them from slides.

The programs at the library are free and light refreshments are offered.

There will be a rummage and white elephant sale at the West Paris UU Church on Main Street on April 16 from 9 to 1. Items may be left at the church on Sunday, April 10, from 9 a.m. to noon or Thursday, April 14, from 1 to 4 p.m.

Buffy is much happier now that he can be outside. He did enjoy the crusty snow for he could investigate the whole neighborhood. Now enough snow has melted for him to travel around on brown grass.

Waterford

by Rockie Graham

April Fool's has come and gone. I think the biggest joke of all was the time change. We now seem to get up later and later, except when we absolutely have to be up early for work. Then we get up under protest. Usually I look forward to the spring time change and get up early and enjoy the spring weather. Maybe it's been the plethora of rain, but Dave and I are both into sleeping in. I guess we'll get over it. In fact, by the time you read this, we'll probably both be rising early.

I don't know about others, but I enjoyed Michael's usual April Fool story. It got one going. I like the idea of tunnels, though. What a great way to get through in the winter and avoid shoveling. Of course, that would just put off the inevitable, and it would make the spring mud season worse, but who cares?

The roads have certainly been bad. First we complained about the frost heaves, but they were nothing compared to the washouts and otherwise flooded roads. I hope by now the water has gone down and the rivers have returned to their banks. We did see great holes at the sides of the roads on Monday. That was a little scary. If a car veered off the road, it would be submerged where it landed.

Next week is the time granddaughter Sadie Morin and I have chosen to get our hair cut and donate it to Locks For Love aka Wigs for Kids. Paula at Paula's Temple Hill Boutique will do the cutting. We are both excited. Becky will be happy to have Sadie's hair shorter, and I will be glad to have mine shorter for a while. Look for us with our new do's starting April 15. It was Sadie's idea. I am just a tag-along. To me, it is the ultimate in recycling. We are even recycling our hair. I used to just recycle it in the compost pile.

The 15th of April is also the date for "Too Cold for the Porch Two." That is the second annual spring poetry reading to honor National Poetry Month. It seems so good to have some real warm weather once in a while. The snow is melting fast.

We had a wonderful time at our 50th wedding anniversary party. Rick and Kellie (our children) and granddaughters, Jessie and Sarah, did a wonderful job putting it together. Over 150 attended. The Legion Hall in Locke Mills is a good place to have such an occasion. They surprised us with a limo ride to the party. Leon Poland (who was an attendant at our wedding) and his wife, Rosalie, also went with us for the ride. We received many nice gifts and congratulations. Thanks to all. Phil Merrill took lots of pictures that I haven't seen yet.

Phelps and Joan Poland should be home from Missouri by the time this makes the paper. They've been gone about a month, and Joan told me she's getting homesick. They've been helping care for their granddaughter, Molly, while her mother, Jo-Anna, is working. I've missed them a lot.

The other big thing this week is that Richard got his truck back from the garage where it has been tied up for almost three weeks. He really missed it. It's running fine now, and hope it stays that way.

Dotty Heath paid me a visit one afternoon this past week. I was glad to see her, as I hadn't seen her for quite a while and enjoy her company.

Kudos to Duane and Lisa Ryerson — their house is completely paid for. They recently made the last payment. Good work!

I didn't attend Town Meeting but heard it went well. It was a messy night, and I hate to drive at night if I don't need to.

Maine Country Music Association is having a Country Afternoon April 10, from 1 to 5 p.m. at Charlies Entertainment Center, Main Street, Norway. It will feature The Gelina Family, Ray Paul, Norman Decoteau, Lolalee and others. Admission is $5 for adults, $2.50 for children 12 years and under. There will be a raffle and door prizes. For show information, call Lolalee at 674-2571. Put on your dancing shoes and join in for a great afternoon.

Library News: Joyce Lamb of West Paris will be the guest speaker at the Whitman Memorial Library in Bryant Pond Thursday, April 10, at 10 a.m. She will speak about one of her trips to England. She spent an Easter at St. Paul's and Winchester cathedrals in London. It will be interesting to compare the Easter celebrations with London, and here in Maine. She will tell of other interesting places she visited and things she did in London with her son, Dr. Joseph Lamb. So, mark your calendar. The programs are free and light refreshments are offered.

Also, keep an eye open for the library's May program. Nancy Willard has offered to lead a program in Tai Chi. This is a gentle, but effective exercise program. More on that later.

From Oxford County Democrats

The March meeting of the Oxford County Democrats, held on the 29th at the Mexico Town Hall, was preceded by a pizza supper with Congressman Michaud and Andrea Quaid, Congressional Aide for Oxford, Franklin and Androscoggin Counties.

Michaud spoke to the group about a variety of issues before Congress including Social Security and the Bush budget, as well as the Base Closure Commission. He expressed particular concern about the cuts proposed by the Bush Administration for veterans' healthcare.

During the business meeting, Mike Broderick gave the treasurer's report. Marianne Stevens, vice-chair of the Maine Democratic Party, reported on developments at the headquarters, including the purchase of a new building, hiring of additional staff with positions posted on the website, a credit card program with sign-up on the website. She announced that Cathy Newell was appointed by Chairman Pat Colwell to chair the Administration Committee and that Roy Gedat was elected to the committee. Mike Broderick was elected to the Finance Committee. All Oxford County Democratic State Committee members were present at the last State Committee meeting. Reports from the Regional meetings held in February and early March were given. Marlee Turner and Myra Bethell reported that a successful meeting was held in the Sacoque region in February and another is scheduled for April 20.

At the February meeting ideas were generated and sent to Howard Dean, the new party chair.

Connie Allen and Cathy Newell reported that the Oxford Hills area Democrats held an excellent meeting at Miriam Laster's home on March 6. Marge Medd suggested that the group assist REACH, the rape crisis center for the county, with an event this spring. The group agreed to work on this, and Cathy Newell agreed to put out an e-mail appeal for individual donations. This is in the tradition of the annual charitable donations made by the Oxford County Democrats, which have included New York City Firefighters, Canton flood relief, local food pantries, and the Prescription Drug Trip to Canada.

The Bethel Area Democrats held a meeting in February and plan to meet in April. The River Valley Area Democrats will meet in April as well.

The remainder of the meeting concerned planning for upcoming events.

Bill Petrie was the winner of the 50-50 raffle and donated his share to the County Democrats. Jan Kubiak donated two lap desks with stationery supplies for letter writing.

The next meeting of the Oxford County Democrats will be held on Thursday, May 19, in the Porter area. Anyone who would like further information may visit the website, www.oxforddems.org, or call Chairperson Cathy Newell at 875-2116.

From the Oxford County Republicans

Due to the storm in March, the March meeting at Bethel of the Oxford County Republican Committee was cancelled. The speaker for that evening, Larry Glatz, chairman of the Oxford County Bicentennial Committee, has been re-scheduled for the April meeting where he will be the featured speaker and fill members in on all the plans for this major milestone in the county's history.

The meeting will be held on Tuesday, April 12, at the Mexico Congregational Church on Route 2, beginning with a 5:30 p.m. social hour, 6:30 p.m. supper followed by the speaker and business meeting. All county Republicans and interested citizens are cordially invited to attend.

From the U.M. Cooperative Extension

Can you remember the last time your entire family sat down together to share a meal and unhurried conversation? Do you often feel like every member of your family is on a different schedule, with very little time to connect as a family as a whole? Does it feel like the family unit comes last in the demands of today's world?

"Keeping Families First" is the topic of a new workshop being offered by the University of Maine Cooperative Extension in Oxford County. Parents are invited to participate in a discussion about why it is so important that families begin to reclaim their quality time together and discuss ideas for taking the steps to do so.

"Too many of today's families are under-connected and over-scheduled," says Wendy Legg Pollock, Extension educator and leader of the workshop. "Children and parents alike are running ragged, trying to keep up with the wide variety of obligations and activities that face them, and time together as a family appears to be on the losing end of priorities," Pollock continues. "I see this workshop as an opportunity for parents to come together to talk about their concerns, and to gain motivation, ideas, and perhaps the courage to say 'no' to some of today's demands in order to reclaim valuable family time."

Keeping Families First will be held on Friday, April 8, from 9:30 a.m. to noon at the Rumford Public Library in Rumford. The workshop is open to the public, free of charge. Call the Extension Office at 743-6329 or (800) 287-1482 to register.

Caught in the Middle
In today's changing families, children are often Caught in the Middle of their parents' conflict when they separate, divorce, or when new stepfamilies form. They struggle with what are known as "divided loyalties," feeling like they have to choose sides in their parents' conflicts, or choose between a parent and a step-parent.

The U.M. Cooperative Extension is offering a workshop, entitled "Caught in the Middle," to help parents deal with this issue. Participants will learn skills that will reduce the feelings of divided loyalties, reducing the negative impact of separation or divorce on their children.

"Parents, of course, want the best for their children during these times of family transitions," says Wendy Legg Pollock, Extension educator and leader of the workshop. "Yet unfortunately, these feelings of divided loyalties can last for decades, sometimes well into adulthood, as parents and others unknowingly continue to do things that keep children caught in the middle. Many adult children of divorce often speak of the struggles of dealing with their parents' lingering feelings of anger and revenge during family events such as graduations, weddings, and even holidays," Pollock continues.

"Some minor changes can reduce the feelings of divided loyalties and free children to love and enjoy both parents."

Caught in the Middle will be held on Friday, April 15, from 9:30 a.m. to noon at the Rumford Public Library in Rumford.

The workshop is open to the public, free of charge. Registration is required by April 12, call the Extension Office at 743-6329 or (800) 287-1482 to register.

From the Jackson-Silver Post

April 12 begins a new season of monthly fun and fellowship when supper/dances resume at the Locke Mills Legion Hall on Gore Road. The meal will be served at 5:30 p.m. with dancing to follow until 9:30 p.m. to music of the Richard Felt band. Cost is $7 for the evening, $3.50 for children under age 12.

From the Mundt-Allen Post

Members of the Mundt-Allen Post 81 American Legion

recently enjoyed the annual Oyster Stew Supper. Service Officer/Chef Brian Strickland and his crew turned in another superb performance preparing the stew, and it was a great time of fellowship.

The occasion also celebrated our own Sergeant Ernest Aguilar's safe return from combat duty in Iraq. With him were his wife, Kristi, and son, Gabe. Joining us to welcome Ernie home was Department of Maine Commander William "Gene" Bickford.

Following the supper, the members of the post were treated to a viewing of a documentary video about the first Allied crossing of the Rhine River at Remagen, Germany on March 7, 1945. The video was provided by Post 81 member Avery Angevine, who was one of the first 120 troops across the Remagen bridge, thwarting the German army's attempts to destroy it ahead of advancing Allied forces.

From the White Mountain National Forest

The White Mountain National Forest and the Trust for Public Land announced today that Hardwood Ridge, a 1,735-acre parcel in Jefferson, N.H., has been added to the National Forest.

Forest Supervisor Tom Wagner said: "Thanks to the efforts of the Trust for Public Land, we've once again been able to acquire a site that is a great addition to the National Forest. This is a beautiful piece of land along the Israel River. Public ownership of the property will protect water quality on tributary streams that flow into the Israel River. Watershed protection is one of our long-range goals."

Aaron Brondyke, senior project manager, said: "The Hardwood Ridge Project continues TPL's dedication to connecting the two main ranges of the White Mountains. We're thrilled that Hardwood Ridge, by its inclusion in the National Forest, will remain forested and open to the public."

The purchase of this property helps the Forest Service meet acquisition goals in their current Land and Resource Management Plan and reflects what was heard from the public during the Forest Plan Revision process. People said the Forest Service should protect and enhance watersheds and ecological communities, provide for outdoor recreational uses, and provide access to National Forest System lands. Wagner went on to say: "This property also meets our need to provide opportunities for hiking, sightseeing, fishing, hunt-

New Vocal Collective at Gould

On Sunday, April 10, the New Vocal Collective, one of New Hampshire's outstanding choral ensembles, will cross the state line from the Mount Washington Valley to perform an eclectic mix of choral literature at Gould Academy's Bingham Hall. Concert time is 4 p.m.

The New Vocal Collective brings music of the 20th century alive in this concert, which they've entitled "Songs in the Key of Love." Among the works performed will be songs by Clausen, Whitacre, Debussy, Stroppe, and others. One of the songs of a romantic nature will be "Five Hebrew Love Songs," Eric Whitacre's setting of five short poems by Hila Plitmann, his girlfriend at the time (1996), and now his wife. The NVC, accompanied by Hilary Jones on flute and Judy Herrick on piano, will also perform René Clausen's setting of a Robert Burns' poem, "My Love's Like a Red, Red Rose." Dr. Clausen composed this beautiful piece as a Valentine's Day gift for his wife a few years ago.

Also on the program will be two rousing pop songs — "I'll Be Seeing You," a World War II classic, newly arranged by Maine native Darmon Meader for the singing group "New York Voices," and "Java Jive," dating from the early 1940s, and more recently recorded by the group "Manhattan Transfer." Both of these pieces will feature Vocal Collective soloists.

The 2004-2005 season is the fifth for the New Vocal Collective, and the second season under the leadership of director Sandra Howard. The group was established in 2000 with the generous financial assistance of Jim Deaderick and Hedgehog Hill Press, and the musical ideas of Michael Martin, its first director. Since its inception, the group's accompanist has been Judy Herrick.

During these past two years, Ms. Howard has had an opportunity to take the group in a slightly different direction by selecting choral works that are more accessible to a broad spectrum of listeners, while continuing the tradition of challenging the members of the group with moderately difficult works that expand their musical skills, and fostering the strong sense of camaraderie that is essential to superb ensemble performance.

Tickets for the concert will be $10 for adults payable at the door. Admission is free for students. Visit the NVC website, www.newvocalcollective.org, for more information about the concert, and about the group's history, its members, and for more details about its entire 2004-2005 season.

ing, trapping, and snowmobiling." Two major snowmobile trails currently traverse this property; the east-west snowmobile corridor trail links the communities of Littleton and Gorham, and the north-south corridor trail links the communities of Lincoln, Twin Mountain, and Berlin. These trails provide vital public access and connection with the National Forest and statewide trails system.

The White Mountain National Forest has small, scattered wetlands that are valuable to the many wildlife species that inhabit the White Mountains. This particular parcel of undeveloped property has natural wetlands and riparian zones, and species dependent on wetlands, such as Carex species, amphibians, waterfowl, and bats. This area also provides important deer wintering habitat.

Under the current Forest Plan, newly acquired lands are placed in the same management area as the abutting National Forest lands — in this case for timber management.

TPL is a national nonprofit organization conserving land for people to enjoy as parks, gardens, and natural areas, ensuring livable communities for generations to come. Since its founding in 1972, TPL has helped protect more than 1.6 million acres of land in 45 states, including over 200,000 acres in New Hampshire.

TPL depends on the support and generosity of individuals, foundations, and businesses to achieve our land for people mission. For more information, please contact TPL's Concord office at (603) 224-0103 or visit www.tpl.org/newhampshire.

Washout Weekend

The 3.5 inches of rain that fell in the Bethel area over the weekend caused headaches for drivers and town road crews. Clockwise, from top left: the Greenwood crew examines a culvert that shifted from frost heaving and created a cavity into which water flowed, undermining the road and creating a sink hole; Rumford Avenue in Woodstock closed because of flooding; a truck navigates a water-covered road near the Howe Bridge in Andover; Route 232, near the Rumford end of the East Bethel Road, closed when the Androscoggin River backed up into fields; and the shoulder of Birch Street in Woodstock washed out.

Clockwise, from top left: A car crosses a flooded area of the Flat Road in West Bethel; the end of a culvert under the flooded Meadow Brook Bridge Road created a whirlpool as it sucked water into it; the heavy rain Sunday did not stop Caroline Gould and her grandchildren, Jack and Samantha Mallory, from attending services at the West Parish Congregational Church in Bethel; and an MDOT worker tests the waters on Route 5 in Albany before setting up a barricade on the northbound lane.

Jeremiah E. Goulka, an independent historian and an attorney in Washington, D.C., who has edited a collection of General Joshua Lawrence Chamberlain's post Civil War letters published by the University of North Carolina Press, will give a lecture on General Chamberlain at 2 p.m. on Saturday, April 9, in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House. He also will autograph copies of his book, "The Grand Old Man of Maine: Selected Letters of Joshua Lawrence Chamberlain, 1865-1914," for those wishing to acquire one following the lecture.

Goulka is the author of several articles and book reviews on historical and legal topics. A former tutor in American history at the University of Edinburgh and a Visiting Fellow at the Northwestern University School of Law, he is a graduate of Bowdoin College, where he studied history. He completed his formal education at the universities of Paris, Edinburgh, and Chicago.

The lecture is free and open to all interested persons.

Prior to this lecture, Larry Glatz, chairman of the Oxford County Bicentennial Committee, will be the featured speaker at the spring meeting of the Oxford County League of Historical Societies to be held at the Bethel Historical Society's O'Neil Robinson House, 1 p.m. on April 9. Anyone wishing to learn more about this celebration is cordially invited to attend.

The Bethel Historical Society is now e-mailing event announcements and other society news to its members and friends. Anyone wishing to be added to the e-mail list should contact the society at info@bethelhistorical.org.

A new event this year at the Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center will be held on Patriot's Day, April 18, at the Dr. Moses Mason House Meeting Room, beginning at 6 p.m. During the evening, modern-day residents of the Bethel area will re-create an "antiquarian supper," based on an event held in 1855, 1856 and 1857 by members of the Bethel Farmer's Club (generally believed to be the first in Maine). The first of these suppers was held 150 years ago this year. During these occasions, citizens dressed in old-fashioned clothing, brought "relics" from the past to exhibit, shared stories of "olden times," and enjoyed a bountiful meal. Although this early effort toward preserving (and celebrating) Bethel's past did not result in the formation of a permanent historical society (this would not take place until more than a century later in 1966), information gathered at the suppers was later used by Dr. Nathaniel Tuckerman True (1812-1887), founder of Gould Academy and the Bethel Farmer's Club, agricultural leader and editor of the "Maine Farmer," in his "History of Bethel," published in serial form between 1859 and 1861. Participants attending the 2005 supper are encouraged to dress in clothes of an earlier time and bring an artifact to show. At least one item displayed in the 1850s will be on exhibit. In honor of Patriot's Day, Jim Rose will appear in 18th century costume and will give a brief patriotic monologue.

Over 1,200 members strong, the Bethel Historical Society, founded in 1966, is western Maine's largest and most comprehensive full-time historical agency, dedicated to collecting, preserving, and interpreting the regional past for present and future generations. For nearly forty years, the society's activities have included lectures, exhibits, special events, heritage festivals, workshops, conferences, school and educational programs, and publications. Since 1974, the society has operated from its Broad Street headquarters, the Dr. Moses Mason House, a period house museum and research library.

In 1999, it opened the O'Neil Robinson House (next door at 10 Broad Street) to the public for an expanded exhibit program, museum shop space, and administrative offices. Through the years, the society's achievements have been recognized by a number of state and national organizations.

Further information about the society and its activities may be obtained by calling 824-2908 or (800) 824-2910 or e-mailing: info@bethelhistorical.org. Additional information can also be obtained by checking the website: www.bethelhistorical.org. The mailing address is P.O. Box 12, Bethel, ME 04217-0012.

THS juniors learn about careers

Telstar junior Errol Andrews drove nails and learned about construction on a Main Street job site during Telstar's recent Career Week.

(Photo: Kayla Mills)

By KAYLA MILLS

About 90 Telstar High School juniors recently took part in the 22nd annual Career Week.

The majority this year chose to job shadow people in the Bethel area.

Errol Andrews spent his week helping A.V.A. construction workers on Main Street in Bethel, who were building a new antique shop.

Andrews said he thinks of construction as a back-up plan if his golfing career doesn't work out.

Musically-inclined Mia Stucchi and D.J. Reynolds went to The Outlook Studio, where artists record CDs. The two girls enjoyed editing music and seeing a yoga CD be recorded.

A number of juniors went to Crescent Park Elementary School for the week. Among them was Jillian Kimball, who job shadowed the gym teacher. She talked about how gratifying it was to help a little boy who couldn't tie his shoe.

"I could definitely see myself being a gym teacher," she said.

Jordan Palmer and Candy Carmichael spent the week performing oil changes, installing rear shocks and doing brake work on vehicles at Bethel Auto Sales.

At Bethel Kitchen Designs on Main Street, Danna Wilson and Heather Bolstridge designed a bathroom with site supervisors Celeste Keith and Charlie Reiss.

"They're always doing 18 things at once," Danna said.

Guidance counselor Karen Bean who oversees the Career Week program, reported that the level of participation this year is one of the highest she's seen.

"Only one or two juniors did not participate," she said.

(Note: Telstar junior Kayla Mills job-shadowed with The Citizen during Career Week.)

BIG ADVENTURE CLIMBING TEAM RESULTS

March 5 at The Wall in Quechee, Vt.:

Emma Nikansen placed third (girls 11 and under); John Nikansen sixth (boys 12-13). This was the first competition for both climbers. There were over 60 climbers in various age categories.

March 19 at Dover Rock Gym, Dover, N.H.:

Molly Keane placed fifth (girls 12-13); Samantha Southam sixth (girls 12-13); Kyler Walker placed third (boys 11 and under); Max Southam placed fourth (boys 11 and under).

From the Rumford Point Community Athletic Assoc.

The Rumford Point Community Athletic Association announces that signups for the 2005 Farm League, Little League and Babe Ruth season will be held Sunday, April 10, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Hanover Town Office on Route 2. Registration fee is $15 per child or $20 for two or more children in the same family.

A meeting to discuss the upcoming season, the field cleanup day and bottle drive will be held Sunday, April 17, at 6 p.m. at the Hanover Town Office on Route 2. Everyone is welcome.

INMAN EARNS NASA INTERNSHIP -- Teresa Inman, daughter of Geoff and Heidi Inman of Bryant Pond, will be attending the Summer Institute on Atmospheric, Hydrospheric, and Terrestrial Sciences as an internship with NASA at the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md. The internship will include lectures by Goddard scientists as well as participating in individual research with a Goddard scientist as a mentor. Teresa is currently earning her bachelor's degree in meteorology at Lyndon State College, graduating in 2006, and was salutatorian of the Telstar High School Class of 2002.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU PLAYING IT SAFE

Conduct a thorough check for any safety hazards when you are getting your house ready to put on the market. You may be accustomed to the worn tread on the stairs, toys in the hallway, or closets that deposit their contents at your feet when the door is opened, but strangers won't be as intuitive as you are. They will be vulnerable to those little "hazards" as they walk through your home, turning the faucets, opening closet doors, and going up and down the stairs. The stairs are good place to begin your safety check - could someone tall accidentally bang their head on a beam, pipe or the ceiling as they go up or down? Is the carpeting on the stairs securely fastened? An area rug should have a non-slip mat underneath. Safety is important because someone who is injured in your home could sue you for damages. This doesn't happen often, but if it does, it can be extremely unpleasant. "Better safe than sorry" applies to houses as well - especially when they are for sale. For professional advice on all aspects of buying or selling real estate, contact Cindy Hiebert at Mahoosuc Realty, 207-824-2771
